A: if(isset($_POST['name'])){ $_POST['name']; } It looks like you're attempting to use a variable called "name" which has not been set. What you probably wanted is if(isset($_POST['name'])){ echo $_POST['name']; } Of course you can use a different variable name as well if it makes the code cleaner/easier to understand. Q: How to read json format data from Arduino I need to read data from a node.js server and convert it into csv format. The data in JSON format looks something like: {"Success":true,"Output": How do I read the array in "Output" and convert it to the csv file? I tried: Serial.println(data); String dataString = Serial.readString(); char filename[100]; strcpy(filename, "temp"); String output = Serial.readString(); Arduino Output: {"Success":true,"Output":[]} A: Your arduino side code should look like below: String dataString = Serial.readString(); char filename[100]; strcpy(filename, "temp"); List output = Serial.parseList(dataString); Arduino Data Output: output: ["a","b","c","d","e","f"] Smart Games The Future of Gaming A new generation of electronic games is coming that combines a desire to be socially connected with high-end hardware and software.
